

Hello donors!

First of all I would like to apologize for the late update. For the past few months i have been offline due to phone problem, my phone was broken and i could not access it. Fortunately the problem has been fixed and i'm now using it. The last update i gave you i was communicating to you that i was going to start first semester of my final year of my program. We had a six weeks theory sessions in campus before going into clinical sites for practice where we spent three months for practice. From there we went back to school to write final exams for the semester. After writing the exams we were given a six weeks break. During the break period i went to Mchinji (my home district) where i was voluntarily working at Chipumi Health Center to boost my experience. I was not able to communicate with my School friends during the break period because my phone was broken.

I'm happy today to tell you that the results of semester one are now out and i have passed and i have prograced to semester two which is the last semester in the final year of my program. I would once again like to let you know that i'm always dedicated to my studies, always wanting to produce good results only that sometimes i fail to reach my desired performance due to lack of resources that can help me gather more information on the topic learnt. For example, When i have been given an assignment i need to go the library to search the information where sometimes the information cannot be found due to limited number of book, sometimes the books where we need to find the information are old with little information.

This always force me to go on internet to search the information which is a little bit expensive for me to afford. I also find it difficult as to where to keep the information that i have googled as i don't have a device like a laptop where i can store the information as a result i'm forced to write down every information i have found. I'm telling you my donors all this to let you know how i dedicate I am to pass exams. I want to let you know this, so you don't feel like you are wasting your money on me, i will always work hard and not let you down. I have now started the theory part in the final semester. We will do the theory part for four weeks then we will go for clinical practice. From there we will come back in campus to write final exams. I will be updating you as i'm going forward, if any changes on our stay here i will communicate as institutions are still working under few restrictions of COVID 19.
