

Hawanatu Alhaji Jabbie
Tonkolili District College of Health Sciences
Academic year 2
Sierra Leone

During my second year as a state registered nurse student at the Tonkolili District College of Health Sciences, I've been deeply immersed in various aspects of healthcare education and practical training. Over the past semester, I've encountered a comprehensive curriculum designed to equip me with the knowledge and skills to excel in the nursing profession.

My studies have encompassed wide array of subjects, ranging from anatomy and physiology to pharmacology and patient care. I've delved into the intricacies of human biology, learning about the structure and function of the human body.

In addition to classroom learning, I've also participated in hands-on clinical settings, where I have applied theoretical knowledge to real world settings. Under the guidance of experienced nursing professionals, I've honed my clinical skills including patient assessment, medication administration, and wound care.

While the journey hasn't always been easy, I've found fulfillment in the knowledge that each lesson learned and skill acquired brings me one step closer to achieving my goal of becoming a competent and compassionate registered nurse.